Fred L. Ordway

Mr. Ordway was the son of Lyman and Elizabeth Haines Ordway and was born at Greenland, N. H., Feb. 1st, 1863. When three years old, he came with his parents to the farm in Glenad on the road leading to the "Bog" about two miles from West Bethel where he has lived ever since. Sturdy and industrious he made a success of farming and butchering for many years.

For the past six years his health has been very poor, suffering much but with a strong constitution he fought disease bravely, and hopefully looked forward to getting better, but in spite of the best care and medical attention to be had, he passed on to the "Higher Life" Feb. 16th, 1923.

He was a jovial host and many came to his pleasant home for rest and recreation, a kind neighbor, a real friend to all and one who will be much missed. He was a member of Pleasant Valley grange and ever active in the order as long as health permitted.

He was united in marriage, Feb. 6th, 1893 to Miss Alice Grover of Berol, N. H., who with one daughter, Mrs. Doris Lord of Bethel survive. One daughter, Elsie, died many years ago when four years of age.

Besides these, Mr. Ordway leaves one brother, Frank Ordway, who has at way made his home with him, one sister, Mrs. Celia Ordway Bell, one niece, Mrs. Somers, and one nephew, Charles Somers, all of Boston.

Prayers at his late home and funeral services at West Bethel church Sunday, Feb. 18th, Rev. Edwards speaking with tender solemnity to the many sorrowing friends and relatives who gathered to pay the last tribute of respect. The many beautiful flowers gave their silent message of loyal sympathy.

Burial was in the family lot at West Bethel cemetery.

Mrs. Marie Hammel.

Funeral services for Mrs. Marie Wight Hammel, wife of Joseph Hammel were held at the Methodist church, Sunday afternoon, February 19, at 4 o'clock, Rev. W. R. Patterson and Rev. L. A. Edwards officiating. Burial at Riverside.

Mrs. Hammel passed away at the C. M. G. hospital, Lewiston, after an illness of many months. She was the only child of Prof. W. S. Wight and the late Flora Barrett Wight and was born in Bethel, Me., 29 years ago. Much of her girlhood was passed in Bethel. She was a musician of ability.

The people of Bethel have been much interested in the past two weeks in the case of the disappearance of David M. Forbes, which occurred Feb. 8. He was seen boarding the 8:01 train that evening and was noticed by passengers from Bethel after passing South Paris. He left messages indicating an early return, so no great alarm was felt until he did not return Thursday evening. It became known then that there was some shortage in his account with the town as tax collector, and rumors have been circulated to furnish reason for the non-appearance, some of which appear absurd to his friends. Mr. Forbes has held other positions in town at various times as well as in local secret orders, and his disappearance has caused great concern. He has been connected with the Citizen office for the past twenty years and was the publisher of this paper from April, 1923, to December, 1922. He was a native of Durham, N. H., coming to Bethel about 24 years ago.

FARM BUREAU NEWS

BETHEL FARM BUREAU HAS PROFITABLE MEETING.

The farmers' meeting held at Grange Hall last Friday was much enjoyed by those present. Donald W. Reed spoke to the farmers in a very able and interesting manner. His talk and the stereoscopic pictures shown while he talked were very instructive and beneficial.

Pictures were shown of some of the most prosperous farms in the state, from a twenty acre, one man farm, carried on without machinery, to a large farm with forty cows and all kinds of modern machinery. These farmers were all prosperous and made a good income from their farms although some of them were far away from market.

The pictures showed how old run old farms had been reclaimed and how old barns had been repaired and improved and made convenient and handy to do chores in. They also showed the cattle on some of these farms and how they had been improved by care and good breeding so that they brought a much larger profit to their owners. The pictures and talk proved that farmers with health, industry, and economy, could make a good profit from their farms.

More of our farmers should take advantage of these meetings.

GREAT INTEREST AT FARM MEETINGS AT IRAM-DENMARK.

A great deal of interest was shown at the two farm management meetings held in Iram and Denmark on the 14th and 15th of this month. The meetings were all day affairs conducted by Donald W. Reed, state farm management demonstrator from Orono, and Donald H. Bailey, Oxford county agent.

These series of meetings constitute an important part of the agricultural extension programs as conducted by the Oxford County Farm Bureau.

Lantern slides were shown in the morning, picturing the story of six Maine farmers who have made a success of the business. Mr. Reed, who has made actual study of these farms, told why the men were successful. In the afternoon, the men with the assistance of the state specialist actually analyzed their own farm business. Those attending the meeting found it an excellent opportunity, after studying their own business intelligently, to work out changes in management they intend to make.

Dinner was furnished by the farm bureau ladies at Iram, who were holding a meeting on "Molasses Cookery" at Denmark, the people carried their own lunches.

Supreme Judicial Court

In the first week of the term the work for the jury was all disposed of, there being one small civil case tried, and a verdict for the plaintiff, and two criminal trials, with a verdict of guilty in each. The traverse jury were discharged Saturday noon.

Rev. L. S. Staples offered prayer as the court was formally opened Tuesday morning, and the routine of the opening proceeded rapidly. Most of the practicing attorneys of the county were in attendance, and it was noticeable that not over half a dozen cases were passed on the call of the docket because of the absence of the attorneys in the case.

Of course the assembly at the opening would not be complete without the presence of Hon. John P. Swasey of Canton, by years the oldest member of the Oxford bar. He was there, and despite his eighty-three years was attending to the business of his clients. And that his tongue has not lost its skill in telling a story was demonstrated outside the court room, to the satisfaction of all who were privileged to hear him.

The grand jury which was organized in October was present, all eighteen members responding to the roll call, and they went at once to their room with County Attorney Flanagan to begin on their work.

Some thirty cases from the continued docket were placed on the trial list on the call of the docket, but on going through the list it was found that only five or six of them were for actual jury trial. In a number of new cases also notice for trial at this term had been given.

The cases for trial were placed on the trial list in order, to begin Wednesday morning, and the juries were excused for the day as soon as organized.

Wednesday was naturalization day, as is usual when there are applicants for citizenship, and ten new citizens were admitted. They were Henry Williams of Hebron, a native of Ireland; Rosa Itha Belanger of Rumford, John James Acorn of South Paris, and Harry Kinneer of Mexico, natives of Canada; and Natale Ricciardi, Giovanni Chiodi, Luigi Carbone, Rocco Gacetta, Nicola Rotiroli and Antonio LaRosa, all of Rumford and natives of Italy.

One small case was tried Wednesday, Mitchell A. Naimy vs. Adney Curney. It was an action of trespass, brought to recover for a plate glass window in the building of the plaintiff at Bethel, which it is alleged was broken by something thrown by the defendant, on the 11th of last March. Defendant denies having broken the window, and as well as denies having admitted such breaking as the testimony for the plaintiff would indicate.

Verdict for plaintiff, $65.50.

No civil cases were in sight for trial Thursday morning, and the court took a recess until afternoon, to wait for the grand jury to report.

The grand jury reported soon after the noon recess Thursday, and the criminal docket was then called.

The indictments made public are as follows:

Alfred Valley of Paris. Assault and battery.

Anita Valois of Rumford. Larceny.

Emile Girard of Rumford. Illegal possession.

George B. Savoy of Rumford. Illegal possession.

George B. Savoy and Edward Davis of Rumford. Conspiracy.

Vincent Jostovich of Rumford. Breaking and entering and larceny.

Vincent Savoy of Carthage. Forgery.

In two cases which were among the first taken up, Justice Deary showed leniency. The respondents were Glen don Hutchinsan of Canton and Vincent Savoy of Carthage. Both are boys of about eighteen and the charges against them were similar, the issue of larceny, charges having read two. Both pleaded guilty. Both cases were continued for sentence, the boys being placed on probation, to report to special probation officers not less than once a month.

In the case of Vincent Jostovich of Rumford, a boy of 17, indicted for breaking and entering and larceny, Justice Deary did not exercise the same leniency, inasmuch as this was a second offense, the boy having at one time been sent to the state school for larceny. A sentence of six months in jail was imposed.

Walfrid Valley of Paris pleaded not guilty and was tried on an indictment charging assault of Doris Wilson of Paris on the 6th of last December. Valois is 29 years of age, and is evidently by of a rather low grade of mentality. Miss Wilson is 18 years of age. The two families live opposite on the same street in Paris Hill village.

According to the testimony of Miss Wilson, who is a student in South Paris High School, on the morning of the 6th of December, after leaving home she went back after something which she had forgotten, and missed the team which would have taken her to South Paris, so started to walk. Near the cemetery she was overtaken by Valley who wanted to walk along with her. He suggested that they go in back of the cemetery, and took hold of her arm two or three times. He had a gun, and said if she didn't go with him he should use it. After a while N. A. Cummings came along on his way to South Paris, and took Miss Wilson in. He did not see Valley, who had gone off to one side of the road out of sight.

Valley on the stand said that he only asked Miss Wilson if he could walk along with her, and made no indecent suggestions. He had a gun, but did not threaten to use it. He didn't think he took hold of her arm, wouldn't say positively that he didn't.

County Attorney Flanagan conducted the case for the state, and Eugene F. Smith of Norway appeared for Valley.

A verdict of guilty was returned by the jury, and Valley was ordered committed to the men's reformatory at Windham.

George B. Savoy of Hamford and Edward Davis of Newport, Vt., were arraigned on an indictment charging them with illegal transportation. Davis pleaded guilty. Savoy pleaded not guilty and was tried.

This indictment is based on events on the evening of the 22d of December last, when officers made a search of Savoy's automobile in Mexico, in which Mr. and Mrs. Savoy and Mr. Davis were riding. A gallon can of alcohol was found in front of the driver's feet.

Davis, who said he was a guest of Savoy for a few days at the time of the seizure, claimed ownership of the alcohol, which he said he bought that day for ten dollars from a man who came around, whose name he didn't know. The Savoy's testified that they knew nothing of the alcohol until it was found by the officers.

County Attorney Flanagan for the state, Angelo Libano and George A. Hotchkiss for the defense.

The jury in the case of George B. Savoy returned a verdict of guilty, and the respondent took an appeal, and recognized for his appearance. The sentence named was a fine of $100 and costs, and six months in jail, or six months additional in default of fine.

Edward Davis, who had pleaded guilty to under the same indictment, was sentenced to three months in jail and a fine of $400 and costs, and is serving the sentence.

Scott A. Cook of Hamford pleaded guilty to an indictment for larceny. A 14 years old girl of 14 years, a high school graduate. The case was continued for sentence.

Pete J. Potts of Hamford pleaded guilty to unlawful possession, and was given a fine of $200 and four months in jail.

Lois Cook of an indictment for unlawful possession pleaded guilty, and was given the maximum sentence of $100 fine and four months in jail.

Lois Butler on an indictment for unlawful possession pleaded guilty, and was given the maximum sentence of $100 fine and two months in jail.

Emile Lorne, in a case of unlawful possession, pleaded guilty and was given $100 fine and four months in jail.

William Wakefield for unlawful possession, was given a sentence of six months in jail and a fine of $200.

Edward Davidson of Norway, for the same crime, was given a fine of $200 and two months in jail.

Walter Walker for larceny, was sentenced to jail.

Walter T. Hennessey of Bethel, for illegal possession, was given a sentence of six months in jail and a fine of $200.

Execution of the sentence was stayed, and he was released on $5,000 bail for appearance.

BRIGANDAGE WANES WITH OLD LEADERS

Travelers in Mediterranean Countries Safe.

Rome.—Brigandage in Mediterranean countries, traditionalized in opera and romance, is now at a low ebb. One by one the leaders of banditry have fallen into the hands of the authorities and in Italy, Greece, Corsica, Asia Minor and Turkey the lawless have been curbed.

Recently "The Wolf of Sita" who was captured by troops about the middle of the last century and sentenced to life imprisonment, died in a Calabrian village, where he had lived since his pardon, at the advanced age of ninety-three. Styled the last of the "classical brigands," the Wolf gave the government plenty of trouble before the forest wilderness of Calabria, a bandit domain for hundreds of years, was swept clean of robbers. Romagetti, slain by French soldiers not long ago, was a brigand who mixed in politics as well as carrying on the trade of an outlaw.

Found Easy Picking.
The business of capturing travelers and holding them for ransom was revived by Mediterranean brigands about 1820 and far better systematized than it had been by the robber barons of the Middle Ages. Once it was discovered that the British government would pay ransom for those of its subjects who were too poor to settle for themselves, what amounted to guerrilla warfare against the British treasury was set afoot in Italy, Spain, Greece and other places infested by brigands.

The sum of £25,000 was paid for the release of Lord and Lady Lansdowne, seized with a party of four in Greece, and three of the party were slain before the money was handed over. The governor of Gibraltar once paid out £2,000 as ransom for two Englishmen captured in near-by Spanish territory. Ransoms of size became the order of the day.

It was extremely difficult to trap the old-time brigands, who flung gold about freely among the peasantry, and for until the populace had been educated to understand that the bandit was a menace to them did it become possible for the Mediterranean governments to stamp them out. In the Apennines, the Apennines, Sicily, Corsica and the mountains of Greece and Turkey the brigand continued to flourish until recent years. Long ago he lost the complexion of a patriot or partisan, such as Fra Diavolo, Pietro Napolitano and others of classical reputation, and became merely a preyer on his fellow-men.

Changed by Transportation.
The railroad, and still later the automobile, helped put an end to brigandage as a craft. Travelers no longer rode on horses over lonely ways or lumbered along in coaches, stopping at inns whose proprietors might be in league with bandits. The high ransoms demanded proved the final factor in the downfall of such brigands. The Mediterranean governments as well as the British were stirred to action by the protests of influential citizens and called out the troops in a general effort. Even then there were reverses: Andriano the Sicilian brigand, destroyed a company of soldiers before his capture, and Tschakrali in Asia Minor defied Turkish forces sent against him.

The bandits of an earlier day appear to have been a long-lived race. There is record of Vassili Tchoumouli, condemned to twenty years in Siberia at the age of seventy-four, escaping and finally dying in a prison hospital of injuries he had received at ninety-six.

Same Statue Used for Many Notables

Paris.—Statues with interchangeable heads, so a long series of notables could be honored with the same monument, date back before the Christian era, say French archeologists. The recent proposal in Warsaw that such an arrangement would be economical, recalled to the French that their research workers in Greece discovered that such a system was used more than 2,000 years ago.

As the name of the temporarily famous person could be inscribed just below the head, it was possible to take a new head in the likeness of the new notable and put it on the old marble base, for as long as the notable lived to be honored.

Vinegar Aids Reducing, but Costs Woman Life

Shrewsbury, England.—Literally killed alive, a woman who for 30 years drank a pint and a half of vinegar a day, has died in St. Mary's infirmary weighing 24 pounds.

Dr. B. A. Brughart, who attended the woman recently, said that she never ate anything without washing it down with vinegar. At one time she weighed 112 pounds, but when the doctor was called she had taken no solid food for five weeks, drinking only vinegar, and weighed 28 pounds. The coroner's verdict was death from chronic intoxication—the intoxicant being commercial vinegar.

No Arrests in Decade

Asheville, N. C.—Dodd township has not recorded an arrest in ten years, and the record is not the result of an inefficient police force. Not a warrant has been issued during the period.

BABY'S LIFE TO BE RULED BY SCIENCE

Savants Will Study Every Move of Girl.

New York.—Poor Harriet Kallen. Her life is to be just one psychologist after another.

They are going to study her every gurgle, make notes on her first laughter, catalogue her first curiosity, analyze her moods and go into conference when she cries.

They want to know why she wiggles her toes and they hope to find out what makes her put her fist in her mouth.

Harriet doesn't know that she is to be the object of such close observation for the sake of science, for she is only six weeks old.

The reason for all this is that Harriet's family is just naturally interested in psychology. Her father, Dr. Horace M. Kallen, is a lecturer on philosophy and esthetics and has been on the faculty of Princeton, Harvard and the University of Wisconsin. He is a disciple of William James and has written books.

The child's mother is the head of the Hamilton Grange school of New York.

The mother will specialize in the child's laughter; her father in her curiosity. Other scientists have been called in to divide the rest of the work.

Prof. John B. Watson will study the emotions and Prof. Edward B. Holt will devote himself to the physiological aspects of the case. He will watch the nerves and motor reactions and study the facial changes.

Ancient Bones Found in English Village

Rathham, England.—The importance of Great Britain as a field for further archeological survey has been borne out by several important discoveries made by workmen during excavations here.

Bones which are believed to have belonged to two ancient Britons who were buried at about the time of Julius Caesar's invasion were found in a stone coffin which was unearthed two feet beneath the surface.

The coffin was hewed from a solid block, while the lid was composed of two large stone slabs and several smaller stones. Fragments of bone were found inside.

A quantity of rubbish was also found inside the coffin, but one interesting discovery was a horn drinking vessel. Two clay pots, one almost spherical and without ornamentation, and the other about five inches high and bearing traces of crude design, constituted the remainder of the discoveries.

The finds are expected to be turned over to experts of the British museum for thorough examination.

Goats Replace Dogs in Laboratory Work

Tuscaloosa, Ala.—Resourcefulness is as necessary in the scientific laboratory as it is in industry.

Dogs are among the most valuable animals for laboratory study in the medical sciences. In the South, however, they are difficult to obtain. Regardless of their lack of any sort of a dignified pedigree, hardly anybody is willing to part with them, even for a good price, in the interest of training physicians and surgeons to alleviate the ills to human beings.

No such sentimental feeling, however, attaches to goats. And they abound in the South. So Dr. George T. Pack of the University of Alabama medical school has turned to these mammals for experimental work in surgery and pathology. Finding them valuable substitutes for dogs and much less expensive. They are not only as easy to handle as dogs, he has learned, but they stand operations well and their reactions in certain physiological experiments are satisfactory.

Six Pieces of Chicken Held Ample for Bride

Clarksburg, W. Va.—If a husband can furnish his wife six pieces of felled chicken, six biscuits, a pair of shoes, a dress, two suits of underwear and six boxes of soap in a week, there is no ground for an action for nonsupport.

Such was the ruling handed down in Magistrate It. Edward Kidd's court here in a case wherein John Six, fifty-three, was sued for nonsupport by his bride, Naomi Six, sixteen years old. Six, employee of a dairy, said his girl wife wouldn't even kiss him after he had bought her the things enumerated and lived with him only a week. Magistrate Kidd dismissed the case.

ASK SCIENTISTS TO FIX STATE BOUNDARY

Maryland and Virginia Seek True Line of Potomac.

Washington.—Instead of following the usual course of employing lawyers, Maryland and Virginia have called in scientists to end their 200-year-old boundary dispute.

The boundary is described by law as the southern bank of the Potomac river from Harper's Ferry to its mouth at Smith's Point, "without following indentations, bays, creeks, inlets or affluent rivers." At such points it follows a straight line, from low-water mark at the other.

That description was accepted in 1877, when the last of a series of compact, the first of which was drawn up in 1803, was ratified by the state legislatures and congress. Its legality is not in dispute. The question is, What does it mean?

Resulted in Controversy.
Inability to produce a satisfactory answer has resulted on some violence and much controversy for the last 50 years. Jurisdiction over rich oyster beds and fine hunting grounds is involved.

Some months ago the problem reached a crisis. Interpretation of the legal description of the boundary was the problem set before the official geologists of the two states, Dr. Edward B. Matthews of Johns Hopkins university and Prof. Wilbur A. Nelson of the University of Virginia. They are now putting the finishing touches on their work, with the expectation of providing a scientifically exact definition which will leave no ground for further controversy.

To reach their conclusions they have had to determine by personal inspection the true course of the Potomac and the exact location of headlands, and to find out who drafted the 1877 compact by such loosely used words as "bay," which ordinarily means a body of water abutting on the ocean.

Must Go Back to 1877.

At some points, where headlands and other parts of the bank have been built out with sediment or washed back since 1877, they have had to determine just where the low water mark was 50 years ago by investigating the ground and comparing old and new coast and geologic survey maps.

Legally, of course, no land or water is being taken from either state, but acceptance of the scientific interpretation of the boundary will bring several changes in the commonly circulated maps which will be in the nature of corrections. All, however, will be of slight extent, the geologists assert.

Marriage Fee Will Be Based on Bride's Beauty

Lancaster, Pa.—A sliding scale for marriage ceremonies is announced by N. B. Graham, who became justice of the peace here with the beginning of the new year. He has issued the following announcement:

"I will marry the first couple coming to me for a very nominal sum compared with the regular charge. The scale will, of course, be sliding. The conditions are that the prettier the woman, the less the fee, and the homelier the man the greater sympathy for the woman. Consequently a good-looking couple, or a good-looking woman and a very homely man, may expect the minimum charge, which will be nothing.

"There should be some heart balm at the beginning of a married woman's life, providing she is tied to a homely man, and, if any of our best men wish to witness a ceremony of this kind, I will insist on the witness making some substantial contribution toward the household equipment of the contracting couple."

Lustrous Pearls From British Columbia Fish

Victoria, B. C.—A recent discovery made by American scientists gives promise of adding considerable revenue to the fisheries of British Columbia, one of the largest industries of the province, which already has an annual yield valued at over $2,000,000. These scientists have found that lustrous pearls can be made from an essence derived from the scales of herrings, which are very plentiful in the North Pacific off the coast of British Columbia.

Recently a plant was established at Nanaimo, B. C., to the manufacture of this essence with technical experts from New York in charge of the operation of the plant, which is equipped to handle 10,000 pounds of herrings' scales daily. The first shipment of the essence has been made to New York, where it is being converted into artificial pearls with, it is said, a luster that compares favorably with the hitherto incomparable product of the oyster.

True Love

New York.—True love laughs at oceans. Five Germans immigrated two years ago, got jobs and saved up. Five German girls arrived in this country recently and forthwith there was a quintuple wedding.
